

NO ONE! Is Going to Label my Child

A Virtual Workshop for Black Parents, Caregivers and Youth

<https://asecommunityfoundation.com/event>

Join Cecelia Arscott and Fiana Andrews, two Black psychologists specializing in the diagnosis and support of children with gifted, dyslexic, other learning disabilities, ADHD, or mental health challenges, this informative and interactive workshop will provide Black parents, grandparents, guardians, and youth with information on:

- What invisible disabilities and learning differences really are (dyslexia, other learning disabilities, ADHD, level one autism and mental health issues) and the strengths and challenges they bring.
- How the confidential testing process works, both privately and in the educational system, and your role and rights as a parent, caregiver, or a young adult.
- Understanding the "special education" accommodation process in the school or post-secondary systems, your child's or youth's rights, and how to advocate and make the IEP or accommodation letter work work to support your child.
- You will also have a chance to ask questions and share concerns.
